A one-day workshop for anyone committed to addressing the complex issue of domestic violent extremism

Description

The US Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) define domestic violent extremism (DVE) as targeted violence or force caused by people primarily based in the United States to achieve political or social goals. This workshop brings together experts from law enforcement, academia, community leadership, and policy-making sectors to address the rising challenges posed by domestic violent extremism. Through expert-led panels, interactive discussions, and presentations, workshop participants will gain deep insight into the nature and impacts of targeted violent extremism within our communities and across our nation.

Topics Include:

- Grasping the nature of domestic violent extremism
- Exploring the root causes
- Understanding the threat
- Comprehending the consequences
- Enhancing prevention
- Improving response
- Strengthening partnerships
- Sharing effective strategies
- Creating safer communities
- Informing policy and practice
